Sherman, 1 from Windom, and 5 from Washburne. In Maryland, Blaine gained 1 vote from Sherman and Garfield gained 4 from Sherman. In Minnesota, Grant gained Washburne's 1 vote. In Mississippi, Garfield gained Washburne's 1 vote, and in North Carolina he gained 1 from Sherman. In Pennsylvania Blaine lost 1 vote to Grant and 1 to Garfield. Blaine gained 1 from Washburne in Wisconsin.

THIRTY-SIXTH BALLOT. On this ballot Connecticut transferred 2 from Blaine and 9 from Washburne to Garfield. Georgia transferred 1 from Sherman to Blaine, and 1 from Sherman to Garfield. Illinois gave Garfield 7, 4 of them from Blaine, 3 from Washburne. Indiana transferred its 2 remaining Blaine votes to Garfield, making the vote stand Grant 1, Gartield 29.

When the break for Garfield was apparent there was great excitement in the Ohio delegation, and the Convention rose and cheered Garfield, as did the galleries. The Sherman and Ohio men and the New-York anti-Grant men led in the grand applause for Garfield, kissing bands to each other in mutual congratulation.

The vote of lows was then announced as 22 for Garfield.

Another scene of great confusion followed, which the officers of the Convention could not control for a long time.

Kansas then transferred 6 from Blaine to Garfield, and held its 4 votes for Grant. Kentucky trans-and held its 4 votes for Grant. Kentucky transferred 3 from Sherman to Garfield. Louisiana transferred 8 Blaine and Sherman votes to Garfield. Maine gave Garfield 14. [Great cheers.] Maryland announced Grant 6. Garfield 10.

The vote of Maryland being disputed, the roll was called in detail, resulting Garheld 10. Grant 6. Massachusetts gave 4 for Grant, 22 for Garfield; Michigan gave 21 for Garfield; Minnesota gave 2 for Grant, 8 for Garfield; Mississippi, 8 for Grant, 2 for Garfield. Missouri was called in detail, resulting: Grant 29, Garfield 1. Nevada gave Garfield, 6, but the aunouncement was challenged, and on a Nevada gave Garfield 6, but the announcement was challenged, and on a call the result was Garfield 3, Blaine 1, Grant 2. At this time the Grant leaders were doing their best to hold their forces, apparently in hope that Garfield would not get a majority.

New-tlampshire announced 10 for Garfield; New-Jersey gave Garlield 18; New-York gave Grant 50, Garfield 20; North Carolina gave Grant 5, Garfield 15; Ohno announced "Garfield 439"; Oregon gave Garfield 6; Pennsylvania gave Grant 37, Garfield 21; Rhode Island, Garfield 8.

South Carolina announced 8 for Grant and 6 for Garfield. The latter vote was challenged for alleged inaccuracy, and the roll was called, resulting Grant 8, Garfield 6. Tennessee announced Garfield 7, Grant 16, Blaine 1. The announcement was challenged, and the vote was polled, resulting Grant 15, Blaine 1, Garfield and 13 for Grant, Vermont transferred 10 from Edmunds to Garfield. Virginia announced Grant 9, Garfield 3. West Virginia gave 9 to Garfield and 1 to Grant.

GARFIELD NOMINATED.

Wisconsin announced 2 votes for Grant and 18 for Garfield, which gave Garfield 379-just enough

The crowds in the galleries sprang to their feet, as well as the great body of the anti-Grant delegates, and there was a wild scene of enthusiastic cheering. The banners of Massachusetts, Maine, California, Vermont, Michigan and other anti-Grant States moved toward and surrounded the Ohio delegation. The military band in the hall struck up " Rally Round the Flag," in which the immense audience joined with great voice and in remarkably good

When order was finally restored, Wisconsin corrected her vote to 18 for Garfield. Arizona gave Garfield 2; the District of Columbia, Garfield, 2: New-Mexico, Garfield, 2; Utah, Garfield, 2; Washington Territory, Garfield, 2; Wyoming, Garfield, 2. The following is the vote in detail:

The Chair, under the rules, anticipated inc, but being on my feet I avail myself of the opportunity to congratulate the Republican party of the Nation on the good-natured and well-tempered disposition which has distinguished this animated Convention. [Cries of "Louder" from the galleries.] I should like to speak londer, but having sat here under a cold wind I find myself unable to do so. I was about to say, Mr. Chairman, that I trust that the zeal, the fervor, and now the unanimity of the secues of the Convention will be transplanted to the fields of the country, and that all of us who have borne a part against each other h re will be found with equal zeal bearing the hanners and carrying the lances of the Republican party into the range of the centry. Mr. Logan spoke as follows:

Gentlemen of the Convention: We are to be congratulated upon having arrived at a conclusion in respect to prescuting a name of a candidate to be the standard bearer of the Kepublican party for President of the United States in union and harmony with each other. Whatever that may have transpired in this Convention that may have produced fee miss of annoyance, will be, I hope, considered as a matter of the past. I, with the irrends of one of the grandest men on the face of the earth, stood here to fight a friendly battle in favor of his nomination, but this Convention has chosen another leader, and the men who stood by Grant will be seen in the front of the contest for Mr. Garfield. (Cheers.) We will go forward in the contest, not with ted hands, not with scaled lips, not with bribed tongues, but to speak the truth in favor of the greatest party that has ever been organized in this country, to maintain its principles, to univoid its power, to preserve its sacendancy; and my judgment is that with the leader whom you have chosen victory will perch on our banners. I say this most heartily: We have not got the man whom we hoped to nominate when we came here, but we have got a man in whom we have the greatest and most marked conddence. The nominose of this Convention is no new or untified man, and in that respect he is no "dark horse." When he came here representing his State in the front of his delegation every manking his State in the front of his delegation every manking him because of our faith in him, and because of that and because of our faith in him, and because were in the emergency, glad to bely make him the candidate of the Republican party for President of the United States—because, I say, of these things, I stand here to pledge the Maine forces in this Convention to earnest effort from now until the idea of November to help carry him to the Presidential chair, [theers.] MR. Mr. Hicks, of Florida, said in substance as tollows:

While the delegates of Florida had not succeeded in having nominated the min for whom they were a unit, they had placed their Moses on the Mount of Vision, where, in the series and cloudless atmosphere, he could enjoy his well-carned repose. They had, however, placed the mantle of commandership and the sword of civil power in the hands of one of the bravest, wisest and most aggressive Joshuas in all the host of Israel. As Fierlda had heretofore given her electoral vote for the Republican nominee for the Presidency, so in this contest he promised to deliver the four electoral votes of that State to Jumes A. Garfield.

Mr. Norton, of Texas, an old gentleman with snowy locks hanging in masses on his shoulders, said in substance:

The Convention brought to his mind that great Convention of the Whig party when its glorious leader, Henry Clay, was defeated by Zachary Taylor, and the supporters of Clay then went to work in behalf of Taylor. So the friends of the great chieftain, General Grant, would be found in the coming contest doing battle for James A. Garfield. [Cheers] He was proud of the nomination, and hoped that the country would, under Garfield's administration, enjoy peace, prespectly and unity, and that the clouds which hang over the South would be scattered.

the name of Garfield was worked in scarlet flowers. The Convention was called to order at 5:30. Lumbard's male quartet, of Chicago, opened the proceedings with the song " My Country 'Tis of Thee, eliciting much applause and a recall, to which they responded by giving the comic negro campaign song known as "Old Shady." When the music ceased Mr. Geary, of Maryland, moved that the Convention proceed to receive the nominations for a candidate for Vice President.

He commended the nomination of Garfield as ting an equally strong man for the second place. He named Ehhu B. Washburne, of Illinois, whose career in Congress was most creditable and to whose whise, human, and manly course in Paris during the Commune, the speaker was an eyewitness, a man whose conduct on that occasion should and would draw to the ticket on which he is placed the great mass of the German vote.

Mr. Houck, of Tennessee, in obedience to the Republican Convention of that State, and to the common sentiment of the Republicans of the South, put in nomination Horace Maynard, of Tennessee.

Mr. Frye was called to the cham.

Mr. Woodford, of New-York, said the great majority of the delegates from New-York came here with the earnest desire and purpose to secure the nomination of General Grant. In this they had been disappointed, but would give the ticket hearty support. In behalf of many of the New-York delegation, he presented the name of Chester A. A Maryland delegate also seconded Arthur's nomination, and said his delegation would sustain it with a solid vote. He regretted that he could not yet promise that Maryland would give a majority for the ticket in November next, but the nomination already made and the one proposed would give Maryland Republicans the best possible opportunity to battle for a political revolution in that State. WASHINGTON, June 8 .- The scene in the House when the news of Garfield's nomination came was entirely unprecedented in the history of that body. When the ballot had proceeded far enough to show that there was a break in Blaine's forces, and a stampede toward Garfield, a motion was made to adjourn. The Democrats resisted this, as they wanted to go on, as they had done all day, passing was reached there was a general elapping of hands on the Republican side. This was the first demon stration. As the call proceeded, members became more intensely interested in that other roll call which was going on at the same moment in Chicago, and squads of Republicans left the hall and crowded around the bulletin boards in the cor ridor and in the lobby back of the Speaker's chair,

All at once there was a wild cheer, which deep ened and spread from the telegraph office in the corridor back to the rear lobby, and culminated in a roar of triumph in the hall of the House itself. Then there was a rush into the House of members, pages, and clerks; and a tumult ensued which was with, but it was continued to the end, and in spite of the uproar; and the chair announced that the House had adjourned. Then there were loud cries for "Hawley," and "speech"; but General Hawley was unwilling to respond. Mr. Robeson then moved that General Hawley take the chair, and Mr. Hawley did so, but he seemed unwilling to make a speech. He simply said:

"The Chicago Convention is its own speech. Our personal good-will goes with our old friend, Mr Garfield. This is a selection in the highest degree satisfactory to every Republican here, whatever may have been his previous preference. I think one result will be to compel a very excellent nomination on the other side, so that the country will be sure of a good President for the next four years.

The Democrats of the House had remained in their seats, and a great number of outsiders came in and stood just beyond the railing. General Hawley was interrupted once or twice by faction Democrats, who wanted him to direct a portion of his remarks to their side.
